ST. CHARLES HOTEL ROBBERY NETS $60 OFF FULTON FARMER

E. A. Attlesy Tells Police Six Ten Dollar Bills Were Removed From His Purse as He Slept.

The sneak who made a "touch" of six ten dollar bills from a roomer in the St. Charles Hotel, Academy and Wall streets, gave the police last night could have gotten another ten dollar bill had he taken the time to open the other side of the pocketbook from which he made his haul. E. A. Attlesy, a Fulton farmer, told the police about it this morning. Attlesy evidenced a gladness that he still retained the eleven dollars but was awful anxious that the police recover the missing sixty.

Attlesy and Thomas Moore, the latter from Edgerton, came to Janesville yesterday afternoon. The farmer had just received a check for seventy dollars from County Highway Commissioner Charles E. Moore for gravel taken from the farmer's pit for repair of country roads. He cashed the order at a saloon and received seven ten-spots, a five and a one.

The Fulton man this morning told the police that they went to the St. Charles to spend the night. They arrived there about 11:30 and were shown to their room by Hugh Wagner, night clerk, who, according to Attlesy, told them that they did not have to register when they inquired for the book. After arriving at the room Moore said they should have some beer, and Attlesy said he told Wagner that he would buy it.

Although it was half an hour after closing time, the night clerk soon appeared with two bottles. Attlesy opened his pocketbook and paid for the liquor.

When he woke up this morning "it" was gone. At the foot of the bed lay the open book. Near on the floor at the foot of the bed, under a small stand lay a box of safety matches he declared rested in his trousers with the purse when he retired. Moore, who still had it when Attlesy awoke him.

Wm. Boos, one of the proprietors of the hotel, appeared at the station this morning and said that he thought some member of the notorious street gang was responsible.

"They could easily get into the building now," he said. Kelly, the man who runs a restaurant next door, has built a coal shed up close to our building and beneath a window, and it would be no trouble to climb on this, get into the window and from there room to go all over our upstairs."

Edgerton News

Edgerton, Nov. 2.—About one hundred members attended the banquet given by the city federation at the library Tuesday evening. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. A. C. Anderson, the president of the federation. Mrs. Anderson presided, and Mrs. Birkenmeier then presided as toastmistress and each member answered to roll call with place of their birth and anything of interest of that place. Then the following program was given: Solo, Mrs. L. Hutson. Address, "The Work of the Year," Mrs. A. C. Anderson. Solo, Miss Hazel Olson. Trip to Devil's Lake, Mrs. L. J. Johnson. Trip to Baltimore, Mrs. A. H. Clarke. This was followed by a laudable farce called "The Dear Departed" given by the members of the Culture Club. This closed a very successful meeting of the federation.

The Young People's Bridge club met at the home of Miss Clara Jensen last evening.

Mrs. E. Langer of Janesville, was a visitor at the home of her sister, Mrs. D. Condon, Wednesday.

Mrs. Spencer Clarke is a visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Clarke at Stoughton for a few days.

P. L. Pierce called on his father at a Madison hospital yesterday.

Mrs. J. S. Miller returned to her home at Madison yesterday, after a visit at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Pomeroy.

Mrs. Genevieve McDonough entertained a company of friends at a Halloween party at her home Tuesday evening.

T. E. Marshall, who has been filling a vacancy at the depot for some time past, departed for North McGregor Wednesday.

Frank Hartzheim was a business caller at Stoughton yesterday.

Miss Anna Gumble returned to her home at Hawley, Pa., yesterday after a two-day visit at the home of relatives in this vicinity. She was accompanied by her brother, George, who has spent the past year in this section.

A number of the Edgerton Relief Corps members were Port Atkinson visitors yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Farman moved into their new residence on Rollin street yesterday.

The Five Hundred club met at the home of Mrs. C. Shannon Tuesday evening. Mrs. F. Coon was awarded the honors.

COOPER WILL TALK ON CAMPAIGN ISSUES

Congressman Will Speak at Myers Theatre on Monday Evening—Bird of Wausau at Evans.

Congressman Henry Allan Cooper of Racine, representing the first Wisconsin district, will speak in Janesville next Monday evening on issues of the campaign. The meeting will be held at eight o'clock at the Myers Theatre. Mr. Cooper is one of the leading republican members of the house of representatives and is a ranking member of the house committee on foreign affairs. He is in a position to say some important things with regard to the candidacy of Charles E. Hughes for the presidency and his speech will be heard with a good deal of interest. Tonight at Evansville there will be a republican rally with County Chairman Starr presiding and Claire Bird of Wausau, the principal speaker. The county republican candidates will attend and will be called upon for brief remarks.

FLOUR PRICE GOES TO $2.90 PER SACK

Predicted Increase Shows Itself—Local Markets Show Fine Assortment of Fresh Vegetables.

Living up to all the dismal expectations of the householder, flour has taken another rise; today it is selling on the local markets at from $2.50 to $2.90. The rise is unprecedented and has been caused by a combination of factors. The grain markets has tremendously boosted the prices of all grain products. Flour of all types has gone up as everyone knows. The price of wheat, the main ingredient in the cities who still own horses are worried over the large increases in the cost of feed. There is practically no article of stock food that has not advanced in price during the past week.

Local markets are this morning showing a most appetizing assortment of fresh vegetables from the hot houses and even from Florida and California gardens. Radishes and young onions at five cents a bunch; large firm cauliflower at from fifteen to twenty cents; fresh California tomatoes at twelve cents per pound; cucumbers at twelve cents apiece, and a fine display of head and leaf lettuce, the former selling at from ten to twelve cents, and the latter at five cents.

There are also a few peaches at fifteen cents a basket.

TO EVERY TRUE AMERICAN

Woodrow Wilson's fight is your fight. He has put equal justice above special privilege, human rights above property rights, national honor above organized greed, and Democracy for all.

The Child Labor Law, the Federal Reserve Act, the Clayton Anti-Trust Law, Workmen's Compensation, Rural Credits, the Shipping Bill, the Federal Cattle Extension act may well stand as the ten commandments of America; his international policies proclaim to the world America's recovery of the ancient faith, America's renewed devotion to Democratic ideals. Woodrow Wilson has given you prosperity with justice.

How much does it mean to you that business is no longer at the mercy of panics, that credit and enterprise have been released from captivity, that the standards of America are now the standards of civilization, and that the heart of the land is not torn by walling of widows and orphans, the slow shuffling of the blind and the maimed?

America today is no less a battle ground than 1776 and 1861, and Woodrow Wilson is no less the champion of liberty than Washington and Lincoln.

What one of you would not fight to defend your home and your country against foreign foes? Fight then, against enemies within that hold greater menace than any foe without.

Do not serve notice upon all future presidents that faithful service is folly, since the electorate is without gratitude, interest and intelligence.

Woodrow Wilson has kept you out of war and given you peace with honor.

Vote then, to re-elect Woodrow Wilson President of the United States.

BELL-ANS Absolutely Removes Indigestion. One package proves it. 25c at all druggists.

WHERE CONTRACTORS STEAL
A MARCH ON OLD BILL

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 2.—Bill Bradley, postmaster of the village of West Salem, is fighting mad today over what he terms "an outrageous proceeding" in the ripping out of the rear wall of the Bradley warehouse by paving contractors. Bradley refused to allow the village to reclaim eight inches of the alley. Shortly before daylight recently the paving contractors took things in their own hands and while Bradley slept they tore down the rear wall. Bradley says he will take the case to the supreme court to prevent the paving contractors from making the alley.

Timely Home-Gardening Hints Series

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—Steps to be taken at this season (fall) for placing the flower garden in a shape for winter, will vary with the kinds of plants grown and the latitude, say specialists of the United States department of agriculture. In the case of perennials, which die down to the ground, but which should live through the winter and send up shoots again in the advent of warm weather, the roots should be well mulched with manure three or four inches deep as soon as the ground freezes. In this group are included such plants as peonies, larkspurs, hollyhock, columbines, iris, pinks, and other perennials.

Cannas and Kindred Plants.
Plants such as cannas, dahlias, gladioli and Caladiums should have their roots dug up and stored in a cellar where the temperature will not rise above 50 degrees nor fall below 50 degrees Fahrenheit. The root clumps of cannas and dahlias should not be shaken free of soil. These plants with the soil naturally adhering to them should be placed on racks or in slat boxes so that air may circulate among them. It is important that the roots do not become too warm or dry and that no frost shall reach them. The bulbs of gladioli, Caladiums and tuberous roots should be stored in a carefully closed box or in a dry jar in the open air for a day or two. They may then be stored in the cellar.

Geraniums.
In all but semi-tropical portions of the United States geraniums must be taken indoors for winter. Florists usually make cuttings in the fall to grow new plants in the spring. This practice is, of course, impracticable for the average householder. The latter may take up growing plants and hold them in a dormant condition by storing upright in boxes of dry soil in a cellar having a temperature of from 40 to 50 degrees Fahrenheit. The plants may be placed close together with only a little dry soil among the roots.

Pansies.
While taking many plants indoors for the winter, the home gardener in a large section of the country should set out in the fall the pansy plants which are to make up the spring beds of these flowers. This procedure should be followed in the country south of a line from New York City to Springfield, Illinois. The young plants should be covered by coarse manure at the first freezing of the ground before it has an opportunity to die.

Preparing Shrubs for Winter.
While a number of the shrubs commonly grown in the garden will go through the winter without injury if left alone, others must be given special attention. Among the shrubs which need no unusual fall and winter care are snowball, spirea, mock orange and lilacs. Hydrangeas, evergreen shrubs, must have special winter protection, and in the north must be lifted, set in tubs, and kept in a frost-proof cellar. An east and west line through Philadelphia is generally accepted as marking the boundary north of which it is necessary to take hydrangeas indoors. South of this line it is usually sufficient to protect the tops of the plants with straw or brush while they are in their outdoor locations. A little manure or straw may be placed on this covering to hold it in place. In bruyarias or thorn apple should be treated like the hydrangea.

PLANTING BULBS IN THE HOUSE.
At the same time that bulbs are being planted out of doors, bulbs of the same and other sorts may be prepared for growth in the house. The housewife who is grow flowers in this latter manner has several possibilities open to her. She may grow many of the bulbs in soil in window boxes or pots, the moistened fiber of moss, or among pebbles, and may grow hyacinths in water alone.

If soil is selected for the growing medium, the boxes or pots should be provided with a layer of coarse drainage material such as pebbles and broken pots, and then filled with light soil. Three to five bulbs may be placed in a small pot in a medium-sized pot, and should be covered with one inch of soil. After planting, the box or pot in which hyacinths or narcissi are planted should be placed on a bed of ashes or sand. The bulbs so planted should be left out of doors for from three to six weeks until a quantity of roots have formed. If it is considered more desirable, the pots or boxes may be placed in a dark, cool room or in a cellar, without covering, and until the roots have formed a mat of long roots. If they throw up sprouts from two to three inches high before the roots have formed, they have been kept too warm. The soil must be kept well moistened, but not overmoist. After the root forming period is past, the pots or boxes may be taken to light, moderately warm rooms for flowering. If the room is too warm the stems will be long and weak. If cool they will be short and strong and make more attractive plants.

If the bulbs are to be grown in bowls of pebbles or moss, or in water, they should also be set in a cellar for root formation to take place before being taken to the room in which they are to bloom.

Alliums, scillas and the like need to be kept in a light, warm place from the time of planting and should not be grown in the house and should not be attempted except by experienced plant growers after receiving special instructions.

CLINTON

Clinton, Nov. 1.—The Brotherhood Bible Class of the Methodist church recently completed a contest between two teams for new members. Beginning with thirty members, the team led by the team led by Frank Stoney and twenty-nine by that led by J. F. Kemmerer, making a total of an even hundred.

On Tuesday evening, in the church parlors and overflowing into the auditorium, the losing side gave a supper to the winners. The supper was served by the ladies of the church. The occasion was a most interesting and enjoyable one. The decorations, the supper itself, the music and the addresses all proved to be contributions to a very successful whole.

The guest of honor for the evening was the Rev. Mr. Leek of Beloit, a former pastor. His address was very much enjoyed. Mr. Markham of the county, A. C. was present, as were delegations from the sister churches in town, headed by their pastors, Ireland and Bailey. Dr. Thomas, leader of the class, came in for many well deserved words of praise for the success of his leadership. Yet was there glory enough for all concerned.

Work of the Main street between Front and Cross street, for the purpose of draining the surface water of the street is finished, and the street is being graded. It is hoped that this will greatly improve the condition of the street.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Reimer of Beloit were calling on Clinton friends Tuesday.

Terrence Terwilliger, Will Hughes, Carl Schuenke, H. H. Anderson and Charles Keough went to Detroit Tuesday on business.

Scriven of New York City came on Saturday to visit her father, F. R. Helmer.

BUILD 1,158 MILES
OF STATE AID ROAD

Year's Mileage Constructed at a Total Cost of $3,631,000, According to Engineer Hirst's Statement.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Madison, Wis., Nov. 2.—In a statement issued today, A. R. Hirst, chief engineer of the state highway commission states that during the present year 1,158 miles of state aid roads have been built at a cost of $3,631,028.28. There were 352 state aid bridges built at a cost of $540,068.11. Together the amount expended by the state during the season now closing totals $4,171,094, which is about the same amount as spent last year for the same purpose.

The mileage added during the past summer and now being completed gives Wisconsin a total of 4,850 miles of state aid highways built during the past five years the highway commission has been in existence. The coming year it is expected that 1,300 miles will be added to this total as there will be some $4,500,000 available for this purpose, according to Mr. Hirst.

Of the 1,158 miles of road built this year, about 35 per cent was graded only and not surfaced. There is added 215 miles of stone and macadam road; 59 miles of concrete road; 102 miles of clay and stone road and about 300 miles of crushed gravel and pit run gravel roads. Up in Florence county five miles of iron ore road was constructed. Sixteen miles of concrete road was built in Outagamie county. Two miles of asphalt road was constructed in Milwaukee county. In addition to the state aid bridges, there were 433 new bridges built by the counties at a cost of $484,679. The state will not pay a cent for these latter bridges.

UP SHU LANE.

When William Penn settled Philadelphia he modeled his new city after London with its narrow streets and alleys, and the same narrow streets and alleys have been the thoroughfares of his streets running east and west after the trees and shrubs—Market, Arch, Race, Race and Vine, Chestnut, Walnut, Locust, Spruce and Pine. New York came by a different method of settlement and through the construction of the island of Manhattan the streets must perforce be crooked and narrow. Boston, no one knows who laid out Boston, but it has no end of odd streets where one can wander from a graveyard to travel over books and land in the same graveyard again and never find your way out. However, down in western New York state I found a little city with a real genuine mystery called "Shu Lane." It started from a wide business street, right opposite a stately Elks' club, and ran between two buildings, one I think the city hall and the other a bank. In a dimly light I saw a policeman's billy and a pair of shoes. That was all. I was introduced to it in plain daylight and while I searched for it again, I found the same former guide to aid me on my second trip.

You walked up a cement pathway, with a hollow in the center. I suppose to let the water run off, but making it more difficult to travel over. You walked up a narrow street, you walked right and into a building with a dim shaded electric light. You walked along a row of glass partitions and at a little distance you entered a room and the mystery of Shu Lane, that is, you took your first degree. Here could be found bankers, lawyers, business men, brokers and all the citizens of the city. I was introduced to a man, whether California was going for Huges or Wilson, why the Giants did not win the National League pennant and what stories of the day. The general manager smiled benignly at all the conversation, gracefully flipped a deck of cards, throwing a card at the queen to the pack without a quiver. Watch him as you might you could not catch his art, nor trip him on one of his wonderful tricks.

But the real delight of "Shu Lane" came when the elevator delivered a genuine Weist rabbit to the lower floor from the mysterious region overhead. "Whence no man must ask," a rabbit was taken to the kitchen and are bit you dream about when at a distance and close your eyes and wish for something to tickle your palate. Just the right flavoring, just the right ingredients properly mixed, cooked to the turn, not stringy, not runny, but as smooth as a piece of satin, that slipped down your throat as you ate it with but one regret that your appetite was not larger or the delicacy not greater.

Paris may have its Moulin Rouge, its Dead Rat; London its famous Chop Houses, New York its Lobster Palaces, Philadelphia its narrow streets and wonderful sea foods, Chicago its beefsteaks and chops, San Francisco its Chinese restaurants and cosmopolitan eating houses, but to the real pleasure the taste of that rabbit found up Shu Lane remains a blessed memory. Perhaps it was the company, perhaps the brilliant men who gathered there, the general manager, his agreeable taste and enjoy this indigestible morsel one must walk up the cement walk into Billy Shu's in Hornell and order and eat a plate of the concoction that Lucullus did not dream of his Roman feasts, to be satisfied with life.

Some Important Special Issues For State To Decide November 7

Special issues are to come before the voters of several states in connection with the general election on Tuesday, Nov. 7. Reports from thirteen states in southwestern, middle western and northwestern territory show the following data:

Alaska will vote on two proposed amendments to the state constitution—one authorizing the legislature to revise the state tax laws so that personal and real estate property may be taxed at different rates; the other providing for a state constitution to be framed by a constitutional convention. The latter is a measure which is being pushed by persons who desire to do a business.

Indiana will vote on one candidate for president and two for vice-president in the state interest in the election. The candidates are: Frank Haney, prohibition candidate for president; Thomas R. Marshall, candidate on the Democratic ticket for re-election; and Charles W. Morgan, Republican candidate for vice-president. The latter is a few blocks of each state in Indianapolis.

Ohio will not vote on any constitutional amendments. The state constitution is being amended in every one of the counties of the state, but Wayne county (including Detroit) and Kent county (including Grand Rapids) have already been "wet." Two prohibition amendments to the state constitution will be voted on, one state opposing state prohibition and advocating home rule.

With state and local issues about Kentucky citizens centered their interest on the national ticket. Two of the states, eleven congressional districts, the 10th and 11th—are represented by Republicans. The others are Democratic.

Three constitutional amendments are to be voted on in Missouri, one providing for state-wide prohibition, another to authorize a state land bank, and a third authorizing the legislature to amend the constitution. The prohibition amendment was quite successful in the past, but the legislature has refused to pass it. The land bank amendment is a measure to provide for the sale of intoxicating liquor in the state.

In Kansas the part women have played in the campaign formed one of the marked characteristics, this being the first year women have been able to vote for president. Five women are candidates for state offices and two for Congress. Dr. Eva Hardin is the Democratic ticket for the Democratic nomination for congress. Mrs. H. J. Corwin is the Republican primary, is a candidate for congress on an independent ticket. Ethel Whitehead of Lawrence is Socialist candidate for lieutenant governor. Margaret Grandle of Pittsburg is Socialist candidate for secretary of state, and Mary Sibbitt of Wichita is prohibition candidate for the same office. Miss Helen of Winfield is candidate for superintendent of public instruction on the Socialist ticket. The two women candidates for the Democratic ticket are Mrs. H. J. Corwin and Mrs. H. J. Corwin.

Alaska will vote on two initiatives and three constitutional amendments. The most discussed initiative is one to amend the state constitution to provide for a state constitution to be framed by a constitutional convention. The other is intended to revise the state primary law to provide for the election of judges by the voters. The amendments are intended to provide for the election of judges by the voters.

reference among voters the powers of referendum and initiative and decrease the powers of the legislature and the state supreme court, and to increase taxes for road improvement.

Oklahoma will vote on a so-called "fair election" law. It adopted the law will provide equal party representation on state and county election boards. Democratic congressional nominations in Oklahoma, except in the eighth district, which is represented by Dick T. Morgan, Republican, are equivalent to election. Mr. Morgan is opposed by Z. A. Harris, Democrat, and Joseph Z. Harris, Democrat, and Joseph Z. Harris, Democrat.

In the fourth congressional district Thomas D. McKewen, Democrat, defeated W. M. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray at the recent primaries. He is opposed by James E. Grosham, Republican, and Elie C. Adams, Socialist.

Nine congressmen are seeking re-election, the worst contest being between three candidates in the new tenth district—Thomas D. McKewen, Democrat, and Joseph Z. Harris, Democrat, and Joseph Z. Harris, Democrat.

The constitutional amendments proposed amendment to the state land section, authorizing $250,000 of the permanent school fund to be set aside as a revolving fund to make improvements on state lands.

Permitting loans from the state school fund on lands up to 30 per cent of the land's value.

Authorizing the state to dispose of minerals under lake beds and turn the proceeds into a permanent good roads fund.

Adding two associate justices to the state supreme court.

Authorizing the governor to cut down items of appropriation bills.

Permitting condemnation of private property for public use.

Amendment (submitted to the voters for the first time).

Extending terms of probate judges from three to five years.

The election campaign in Wisconsin has probably been the quietest in many years. Considerable interest is shown in the election of United States senator to succeed Robert M. La Follette. Senator La Follette, Republican, and William R. Wolfe, Democrat, are the leading nominees, made a good canvass of the state, as also did Governor E. L. Dillingham and his Democratic opponent, Bart Williams. The factional differences between the two Republican wings, those known as the progressive or La Follette faction, and the conservatives, headed by Governor Philipp, seem to have been bridged over, and all Republican speakers are advocating election of the complete Republican ticket, made up of both La Follette and Philipp nominees.

Differences in the Democratic camp, which arose over the wresting of control from Judge John C. Karel, candidate for governor two years ago, seem to be smoothed out.

There is but one amendment to the constitution to be voted upon—that providing for a sheriff to succeed himself.

The liveliest state interest in Nebraska seems to center in the constitutional amendment to provide for prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors. Of the 22 counties in the state, 28 are wholly "dry" under local option, and 26 others are without saloons. There are 32 "dry" cities and towns and 29 "wet" cities. A prohibition amendment was defeated 26 years ago by approximately 20,000 majority. Of this, 22,000 came from Omaha and Douglas county, the two largest cities in the state. Since then a material reversal of sentiment has taken place.

Victorious campaigning has been done by the candidates for United States senator and governor. For senator the incumbent, Gilbert M. Hitchcock of Omaha, Democrat, is opposed by John K. Kennedy, Republican, of Omaha, former congressman. This is the third time they have been pitted against each other, the others being for congressional honors, and each has a win to his credit.

If there is any special issue in the Iowa campaign, leaders say it is the prohibition question. The entire state is now "dry" as the result of the referendum of the so-called Iowa Mule law by the last legislature. Led by the Des Moines Register, "dry" forces in the state centered their attack on the legislature by W. L. Harding of Sioux City, Ia., Republican, candidate for governor, and on his alleged private views on the liquor question.

Many "dry" Republicans, leaders declare, have signed their intention of voting for E. T. Meredith, the Democratic candidate, for the reason that he is "dry." On the other hand, leaders declare, many "wet" Democrats will vote their party because they believe Harding to be "wet." Mr. Harding has asserted he favors prohibition legislation as called for in the Republican platform.

An amendment providing that if the federal constitution is changed to provide for holding general elections on Mondays instead of Tuesdays, the state constitution shall automatically change with it, will be voted upon.

South Dakota will vote again on prohibition and woman suffrage. A woman suffrage amendment was defeated in November, 1914, by a vote of 10,000 to 9,158, and an amendment restricting the sale of liquor was defeated by practically the same vote. The county option plan has been in force since foreclosures base North Dakota predictions on phases of "hyphenism," since nearly one-fourth of the state's voters—23,000 out of 110,000—are German lineage. Republican prophecy that the state will return to their party, but Democrats are confident.

NEWS NOTES—MILWAUKEE

Alice Brady is the star of seven of the picture plays to be released before the end of May, 1917. "These are 'Bought and Paid For,' 'A Woman Alone,' 'The Girl in the Wagon,' 'Darkest Russia,' 'The Madness of Helen,' 'Sinners,' and 'From Foul.'"

At this rate of productivity as an actress Miss Brady is portraying one new role every month, which is considering that the process covers a long stretch of time and is not operated under special pressure.

"When I was very new to the speaking stage I realized that I lacked experience, and I thought the best way to acquire it was to join a stock company where they changed the bill every week."

"The plays were changed, so often that we scarcely knew one of them before we were plunging into another. We were in a rut in a rut in spite of ourselves. And then, if we were imperfect in our lines, and 'sensed' them as best we could, and slipped through somehow."

Gardens are never done in the pictures. One phrase may be made to do duty for another in the speaking drama, but you cannot make a substitute expression of action for the place of a real thing. In other words it is impossible to stir a scene or any portion of a scene in the pictures because the camera is sure to catch you at it if you try."

Alice Brady.

DEMURE QUAKERESS IS A MOVIE STAR

From a Quaker boarding school to stardom in the motion picture was the big jump made by Betty Howe, who is appearing with Harry Fox and Grace Darling in several of the episodes of the International.

Miss Howe was born in New York City. She spent her girlhood at Bay-side, and during the summer months wore a bathing suit practically all the time, swimming, canoeing and yachting. She was a demure little girl, and it was quite fitting that she should be sent to a Quaker boarding school at Chappaqua, N. Y. She remained there two years, and when she was graduated had never been inside of a theater.

One night she attended a motion picture performance. She was so enthralled that the following day she applied to a motion picture company for a position. A "test" was made of her, and it was so successful that she was immediately engaged as costar with Frank Daniels in a series of comedies.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Chaffin and daughter of Bethel visited relatives here yesterday.

Miss Marian Lawson of South Milwaukee spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leffingwell.

Mrs. Kate Gibbons has gone to Chicago for a visit with friends.

Mrs. Martha Shepard has gone to Los Angeles, Cal., to spend the winter.

Miss Lillian Aylward spent Saturday and Sunday with friends at Genoa Junction.

Dr. J. J. Connel has sold his house on Fremont street to Maurice Hawes and will move to the McDougall flats. He intends to erect a new home on the lot next to the one he just sold. The Hawes family will move soon to their new home.

Rev. C. I. Andrews was in Janesville yesterday to perform the ceremony at the wedding of J. H. Guernsey and Miss Blanche Starr. A. H. Wagner of this city played the wedding march from Wagner.

Mrs. Druse of Racine is visiting relatives here a few days.

DELAVAN

Delavan, Nov. 1.—Mrs. E. L. Durkin enjoyed a visit from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wolcott, of Sharon, today.

Mrs. Buell of the Wisconsin school for the deaf is enjoying a few days' visit from her mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Brien's little daughter Bessie fell from a low building last Saturday, and injured her arm and leg quite severely. Dr. Wright was called and found no break in the bone, but the leg is badly bruised and swollen.

The St. George church and other residents of Delavan are enjoying a visit from Miss Dope of Lake Geneva, who remained here since last Friday, when she accompanied a party of friends here from that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Clara Van Horn of Allen's Grove is here today as guests at the home of Mrs. A. McCallister and Mrs. Kelsey and family.

A democratic rally was held in Delavan Tuesday evening, and interesting speeches were given by prominent politicians. The Delavan Band also provided inspiring music.

Mrs. William Tuttle has gone to Chicago to visit her daughter, Mrs. John Hart, and her son, John Tuttle, and wife. She was accompanied by Mr. Edward Tuttle, who is on her return trip to her home in Canada.

The Bradley store closed today for a few days to observe a Halloween surprise party on Miss Ethel Lurig, who lives with her sister, Mrs. Peterson. Tuesday evening, a mock election was held, and the features and an enjoyable time was had.

Mrs. George Ellis is enjoying a visit this week from her niece and husband, Mr. and Mrs. James Hoague, of Janesville.

Many disastrous pranks were played here Halloween by the boys, but nothing serious resulted.

William Hollister was a Beloit caller part of last week.

G. H. Hollister is being assisted this week by O. M. Hatch of East Delavan.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Goodspeed entertained Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Southwell of Beloit last Monday.

Mrs. E. H. Parks and Mrs. Anderson are enjoying a visit from Mrs. Harris Loomer, of Millard, this week.

B. Coleman was a Milwaukee caller last week, returning Thursday.

Miss Harriet Hull entertained the Telephone Girls Club Monday evening.

F. G. Tanck has employed Jack Murphy of Milwaukee as pharmacist, to take the place of Francis Reilly, who has resigned.

Mr. and Mrs. William McCallister now occupy the Broker house on Institute Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Bucklin have moved from the Bidden house to the Kelley Spooner house on Fourth street, which was vacated by C. Quale.

Mrs. A. H. Reader has as her guests Mrs. Laura Jacob and Mrs. Dowie of Sharon.

NEW MYERS THEATRE.

Hyams and McIntyre in "My Home Town Girl."

To interest the majority of theatre-goers in any town in America it is only necessary to announce that John Hyams and Leila McIntyre are to be seen again this season in their new musical comedy success, "My Home Town Girl," that is said to be even better, from an entertaining point of view, and more suited to their peculiar tastes than the comedy in which they gained such unusual popularity, "The Girl of My Dreams." The book and lyrics of the piece were written by Frank M. Stammers, with music by Louis Hirsch.

Perry J. Kelly is producing the attraction and has spared no expense to place his two stars in an elaborate scenic setting and surround them with a splendid supporting cast of New York artists. This season the cast will be the same that aided in the tremendous success of the play in a tour of the cities last year.

The principal characters are Edna von Luke, Alma Youlin, Maude Beatty, Doris Vernon, Dorothy Reich, Roy Purviance, Maurice Darcy and John Hall, together with a host of pretty girls and the company's own symphony orchestra.

"My Home Town Girl" with Hyams and McIntyre, will be seen at the New Myers theatre tonight.

NEW MYERS THEATRE.

Hyams and McIntyre in "My Home Town Girl."

To interest the majority of theatre-goers in any town in America it is only necessary to announce that John Hyams and Leila McIntyre are to be seen again this season in their new musical comedy success, "My Home Town Girl," that is said to be even better, from an entertaining point of view, and more suited to their peculiar tastes than the comedy in which they gained such unusual popularity, "The Girl of My Dreams." The book and lyrics of the piece were written by Frank M. Stammers, with music by Louis Hirsch.

Perry J. Kelly is producing the attraction and has spared no expense to place his two stars in an elaborate scenic setting and surround them with a splendid supporting cast of New York artists. ## Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Is it a sign of affection if a boy kisses a girl's hand when parting for a couple of years?

(2) I am seventeen years old and I am not beautiful. I have a very charming girl friend who is admired by all the boys. One of the particulars. They seem to like her very much in a short time. I dress very plainly, but I do not look sloppy. I, of course, long to be popular like my friend. What can I do to become so?

(3) I have been going to school parties, movies, auto riding, etc., with boys. Do you think it is proper for a girl to go to school parties, movies, auto riding, etc., with boys?

(4) It is proper for a girl to go to school parties, movies, auto riding, etc., with boys?

(5) Do you think it is proper for a girl to go to school parties, movies, auto riding, etc., with boys?

(6) It is a sign of affection, but it should not be taken too seriously.

(7) You can be free from sloppiness and still not be plain.

(8) You can and as beautiful as you are.

(9) It is a sign of affection, but it should not be taken too seriously.

(18) It is a sign of affection, but it should not be taken too seriously.

(19) It is all right to go to school parties, but not auto riding and to movies.

(20) It would be proper.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am almost twenty-five year old. My mother went through some very nerve racking experiences before I was born. She was so nervous that she chewed but nails continually. I have that habit very badly. She says I must have inherited it. Although I have been very strong with power, I cannot overcome the habit. I bite them when I am by and don't realize I am doing it until too late. I have tried putting on bitter liquids, but I have my hands in water so much they do no good. My nails are brittle and seem to grow away from the fingers at the ends. What can I do? I feel terribly over this and always have.

(2) I am a widow and I am engaged to a widower. We are to be married in a little over a month. There will be no great wedding. How can we announce our marriage to our friends? This announcement is just for friends and not relatives.

(3) You may have inherited a tendency to be nervous, but you could not have inherited the habit of biting your nails. Will power and the use of bitter oils is the only thing that will break the habit. Put quassa on your nails just as soon as you take your hands out of water. The nails will be less brittle if you rub them with vasoline over night.

(4) You can buy printed announcements or have them engraved. If you don't care to go to the expense, the only thing to do is to write little personal notes.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am nineteen years old and have gone with a fellow several different times. He occasionally he fails to come when I have a date with him. Would it be all right to continue to go with him occasionally?

(2) His sister and I are very good friends. Is it proper to go to her home when asked?

(3) If a boy cares so little for a girl that he does not consider it important to keep dates with her, he should not be granted dates.

(4) Yes.

THE PERILS OF MATURITY

(Longevity Series—1)
A certain amount of worry is good for one who is fully grown up and comes to his senses. The individual who is fully grown up and comes to his senses. The individual who is fully grown up and comes to his senses.

The death rate per thousand population has steadily increased in recent years for babies, children, youths, young adults and aged persons, but the rate for mature, ripe middle age, when we are popularly supposed to be at our best, is increasing in spite of all improvements in sanitation and mode of life. Of course, there is a reason.

The word "Osteoporosis," which came into use through a reporter's garbled version of the facts, is as odious in its illegitimacy as in its slur upon nature. Dr. Osier did not say that "public health is purchasable"—meaning that a community may have as high a standard of health as it is willing to pay for in hard cash.

Health officers are busy saying that "public health is purchasable"—meaning that a community may have as high a standard of health as it is willing to pay for in hard cash.

may prolong his years and increase his efficiency by studying personal hygiene.

Among the countless systems of exercise, diet, bathing, psychology, the many new cults of healing springs up from year to year, the ever growing list of popular books, magazines, and newspaper departments dealing with health and hygiene, it would seem that he who reads may run his full three score and ten in good order.

Unfortunately, the popular demand for knowledge about health is not always answered by qualified teachers. The layman must beware lest his chosen "system" make an ass of him. What the conscience of the man behind the pen? What is his motive? What does he dispense—pseudo-science or common sense? One needs expert advice in the selection of method or system of living. Before committing himself he should seek the opinion of a friend who is an expert and a regular nippy when it comes to a choice between his own business affairs and the welfare of a patient. That expert is the family doctor.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Faintness and Nausea from Syringing

Will you please explain why I am always made faint and nauseated when I endeavor to syringe my ear for an itching sensation in the canal? The water is very warm and the perforation of the drum, or without such perforation, if the water is either a trifle cool or a trifle too warm, fainting or nausea is likely to occur because the circulation of the lymph in the semi-circular canals in the inner ear is disturbed—a sort of seasickness results.

"Well, have you got settled in your new home?" asked Tom as he breezed in from the office.

"Yes, everything in ship shape. Hurry and dress for dinner; I am hungry," he replied. "What is the dinner about ready?" asked Tim, peeping into the kitchen.

"What are you looking out there for? You do not expect me to test the dinner, do you?" she asked with asperity. Tom stared.

"Why, yes; don't married people eat at home?" I thought that was one of the advantages of being married.

"Well, you thought wrong. When you are able to set up an establishment and have servants we can dine at home. Not before."

"What are you going to do with your time?" asked Tom, gazing at his wife with a puzzled expression.

"In the country, I am going to do with my time. I am going to do with my time. I am going to do with my time."

RURAL SCHOOLS OF WISCONSIN IN LEAD

DECLARES C. P. CARY

State Superintendent. Points Out Progress of Last Ten Years in State's Country School System.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 2.—"No state in the union excels Wisconsin in country school efficiency. The country school legislation in our state in the past few years has attracted the attention and called forth the admiration of United States government officials and of hundreds of other people who are watching educational progress."

This statement was made by C. P. Cary, state superintendent of schools, in his address before the annual meeting of the Wisconsin State Teachers' association here today. He pointed to the evidence of improvement in the country schools during the past few years and told of the interest of school boards and people in the advance.

Points Out Progress
"In 1905 there were no school board conventions, except possibly a sporadic one here and there," said Mr. Cary. "Ten years later, 1915, there were 165 such conventions with an attendance of some 15,000. In 1905, ten years ago, of all the teachers under the jurisdiction of county superintendents, the number getting less than $25 per month was 15,000. In 1915, the number getting less than $40 a month was nearly 6,000. In other words, 61 percent of all the teachers under the jurisdiction of county superintendents were getting less than $40 per month and only 1,350 were getting more than $50 per month. Ten years later, 1915, only 600 teachers got less than $40 per month and 4,800, or 44 percent, as against 14 percent ten years earlier, were getting more than $50 per month."

"In 1905 half the teachers under county superintendents had no training certificates. Ten years later less than a quarter of them held third grade certificates. In other words, there were less than half as many third grade certificates in 1915."

Ten years ago, 1905, there were six county training schools for training country teachers. In 1915 there were twenty-eight training schools and in addition to this twenty-seven training classes for teachers in high schools, a total of 53 schools training teachers for the country schools. This statement does not include similar training in several of the normal schools.

Teachers Better Qualified
"Ten years ago 2,200 schools were in session less than 100 days. Last year only 20 schools had less than 100 days. Last year 2,833, or almost 60 percent of the persons teaching in one room country schools had been graduated at least from a four year high school. Nearly 20 percent, or 1,795 of the total teaching force in the one room country schools were graduates of county training schools; 263 of these were also graduates of high schools."

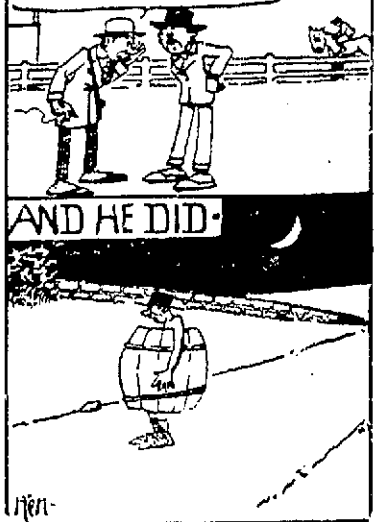

"During the biennial period ending June 30, 1905, ten years ago, the land commission loaned $689,446 for the purpose of erecting new school buildings in districts under the jurisdiction of county superintendents. For the last biennial period the loan was $1,343,000, or nearly twice as much as was loaned ten years ago."

Superintendent Cary told of the aid to country schools, of the consolidation school work, of the progress of the state graded schools and compared the educational laws of Wisconsin with other states.

VACATION TIME.

I hate to hear a guy come back and slam vacation time, a-telling how he'd suffered at the country roads he'd climb; a-telling how he didn't like the rural spots of ease, where skeeters are tormentors, the domestic fly a tease, where bugs, assorted species, and of ants about a peck, did a marathon or fox trot sprawled beneath a shade tree, for a peaceful vacation time, the country and vacation time, he listed as a pest. And we hate to hear him holler, and we hate to hear him wail, we could clear our deck for action, and right into him could sail, for he gets us very nervous, really makes us want to fight, when he puts like real vacation time he puts in such a light. "There," I cried, as the job was done, "we have our pool and our garden bench! We have some of our flowers planted for next year! We have our bit of lawn! Let's go up the orchard to the front door and see how it looks."

I left the wheelbarrow forgotten to the road, and we ran up the slope together, turned at the door, and gazed back. The pool shimmered in the afternoon sun. We could hear the water tinkling over the dam. Beyond the pool was the dark semicircle of fresh mold that was to be green grass backed by blossoms against the shrubbery, and finally, at the very rear, now stood the white bench, from this distance gleaming like marble.

"Fin! It looks fine!" I cried. Stella's eyes were squinted judiciously. "Oh, dear," she said, "I wish there was a cedar, a tall, slender, dark cedar, just behind the bench at either end. And, John, do you know, we ought to have some goldfish in the pool!"

I sighed profoundly. "You are a real gardener," said I. "Nothing is ever finished!" "I'm afraid I am," she answered. "But we will have the goldfish, won't we?" "Yes, and the cedars, too," I replied. "I'll ask Mike when is the best time to put 'em in."

Mike was sure that spring was the best time, and there were some good ones up in our pasture. "Oh, dear, spring is the best time for everything. It seems to me, and here it's only July!" cried Stella. "Well, anyhow, I'm going to draw a plan of the pool garden, and hang it over my desk."

She got paper and pencil and drew the plan, while I lay under an orchard tree listening to the tinkle of the waterfall and watching her while Buster came and licked my face.

"I think your arrangements of iris on the edge is rather formal," I was saying, "and it would be rather more decorative, if not decorative, for you to sit upon the bench, and—when we heard a motor rumble over the bridge at the brook, and the engine stop by our side door."

CHAPTER XVI.

Callers.

"Heavens!" cried Stella, leaping to her feet. "Do you suppose it's callers?" She looked ruefully at her paint-stained fingers, at her old, soiled khaki garden skirt, which stopped at least six inches from the ground, and then at my get-up, which consisted of a very dirty soft-collared shirt, no necktie, khaki trousers that beggared description, and soft-crusted boots. Some passengers from the motor were unquestionably coming up our side path—they were coming around the corner by the lilac bush to the front door—they were around the lilac bush—they were upon us!

We looked at them—at a large, ample female in a silk gown anything but ample, at a young woman elaborately dressed, at a smallish man with white hair, white mustache and ruddy complexion, clad in a juvenile Norfolk jacket and white dannels.

"They are coming to call!" whispered Stella. "The Lord help us! John, I'm scared!"

We advanced to meet them, and as I glanced at my wife, and then at the ample female, I was curiously struck with their resemblance to a couple of strange dogs approaching each other warily. I fully expected to see the stout lady snuff; she had that kind of a nose.

"How do you do," said she. "I'm Mrs. Eckstrom. I presume this is Mr. and Mrs. Upton?"

Stella nodded.

"We are neighbors," she continued.

with an air which said, "You are very fortunate to have us for neighbors." "We live in the first place toward the village. This is Mr. Eckstrom, and my daughter, Miss Julia."

"We can hardly offer our hands," said Stella. "Will you forgive us? You see, we are making a garden, and it's rather messy work."

"You like to work in the garden yourself, I see," said Mrs. Eckstrom. "I, too, enjoy it. I frequently pick rose-bugs. I pick them before breakfast, very early, while they are still sleepy. I find it is the only way to save my tea roses."

"The early gardener catches the rose-bug—I'll remember that," Stella laughed. "Perhaps you would care to see the beginnings of our little garden?"

We moved down through the orchard and surveyed the pool. I suppose it did look bare and desolate to the outsider, who did not see it, as we did, with the eye of faith—the bare soil green with grass, the lip ringed with its blades, the shrubbery bordered with a mass of blossoms. At any rate, the Eckstroms betrayed no enthusiasm.

"Mr. Upton spaded all that lawn up himself, and we made the bench together," cried Stella.

"Well, you must like to work," said Mr. Eckstrom. "It's so much simpler to sit a few men on the job. Besides, they can usually do it better."

Stella and I exchanged glances, and she cautioned me with her eyes. But politeness was never my strong point. "Sometimes," said I, "it happens that a chap who wants a garden lacks the means to sit a few men on the job. Under those conditions he may, perhaps, be pardoned for laboring himself."

There was a slight silence broken by Stella, who said that we were going to get some goldfishes soon. "We can give them some out of our pool, can't we, father?" the other girl said, with an evident effort to be neighborly. "We really have too many."

"Certainly, certainly, have Peter bring some over tonight," her father replied. "Oh, thank you!" Stella cried. "And will you have Peter tell us their names?"

"Their what?" exclaimed Mrs. Eckstrom.

"Oh, haven't they names? The poor things!" Stella said. "I shall name them as soon as they come."

"What a quaint idea," the girl said, with a smile. "Do you name all the creatures on the place?"

"Certainly," said Stella. "Come, I'll show you Epictetus and Luella."

This was a new one on me, but I kept silent, while she led us around the house and lifted the plank which led up from the sundial lawn to the south door. Under it were two enormous toads and two small ones.

"Those big ones are Epictetus and Luella," she announced. "And, dear me, two children have arrived to visit them since morning! Let me see."

She dropped on her knees and examined toads carefully, while they tried to burrow into the soil backward, to escape the sun. Our callers regarded her with odd expressions of mingled amusement and amazement—or was it pity?

A son and daughter-in-law, she announced, rising. "They are Gladys and Gynor."

A polite smile flickered on the faces of our three visitors and died out in silence. Stella once more shot a glance at me.

We turned toward the house. "If you will excuse me for a few moments, I will make myself fit to brew you some tea," said my wife, holding open the door.

"That is very kind, but we'll not remain today, I think," Mrs. Eckstrom replied. "We will just glance at what you have done to this awful old house. It was certainly an eyesore before you bought it."

"I liked it all gray and weathered," Stella answered. "In fact, I didn't want it painted. But apparently you have to paint things to preserve them. Still, the Lord made wood before man made paint."

"He also made man before man made clothes," said I.

A polite smile from the girl followed this remark. Her father and mother seemed unaware of it. They gave our beautiful living room a casual glance, and the man took in especially the books—in bulk.

you smoke?" I offered him a cigar. "Thanks, no," said he. "Doctor's orders. I can do nothing I want to. Diet, and all that. Bally nuisance, too. Why, once I used to—"

"Father," said the girl, "don't you want to see if the car is ready?"

The look of animation which had come over the man's face when he began to talk about his health vanished again. He started toward the door.

"Let me," said I, springing ahead of him.

The car, of course, was waiting, the chauffeur sitting in it gazing vacantly down the road, with the patient stare of the true funk. I came back and reported. With a polite good-by and an invitation to call and see their garden the guests departed.

Stella and I stood in the south room and listened to the car rumble over the bridge. Then we looked at one another in silence.

Presently she picked up what appeared like a whole pack of calling cards from the table, and glanced at them.

"John," she said, "it's begun. They've called on me. I shall have to return the call. Are all the rest like them, do you suppose?"

do you suppose? Are they all so deadly dumb? Have they no playfulness of mind? I tried 'em out on purpose. They don't arrive."

"They're rich," said I. "Almost all rich people are bores. We bored them. The old man, though, seemed about to become quite animated on the subject of his stomach."

Stella laughed. "I'm glad we were in old clothes," she said. "And aren't Epictetus and Luella darlings?" "By the way," I cried, "why haven't I met them before?"

"I just discovered them this noon," she answered. "You were working at the time. I was saving them for a surprise after supper. I'm glad Gladys and Gynor brought no grandchildren, though. It would have been hard to name so many correctly right off the bat, and it's terrible to start life with a wrong name."

"As Mike would say, it is surely," I answered. "That is why they were careful to call you Stella."

"Do you like the name?" she whispered, creeping close to me. "Oh, John, I'm glad we're not rich like them!" with a gesture toward the pack of calling cards—"I'm glad we can work in the garden with our own hands and play games with toads and just be ourselves. Let's never be rich!"

"I promise," said I, solemnly.

Then we laughed and went to hear the hermit thrush.

CHAPTER XVII.

Autumn in the Garden.

I spent considerably more money in July and August. Some of the items would be regarded as necessities even by our rural standards; some my farming neighbors would deem a luxury, if not downright folly. I was a green farmer then; I am a green farmer still; but as I began to get about the region a little more that first summer, especially at haying time, I was struck with the absurd waste of machinery brought about by inefficient care and lack of dry housing, and I began to do some figuring. All my rural neighbors, even Bert, left their plows, harrows, hay rakes, mowers, and even their carts, out of doors in rain and sun all summer, and many of them all winter. A soaking rain followed by a scorching sun seemed to me, in my ignorance, a most effective way of ruining a wagon, of shrinking and splitting hubs, of loosening the fastenings of shafts even in iron machinery. Neither do rusted bearings wear so long as those properly protected. I began to understand why our farmers are so poor, and I sent for Hard Cider.

Just behind the barn he built me a lean-to shed, about seventy-five feet long, open toward the east, and shingled rainproof. It cost me $500, but every night every piece of farm machinery and every farm wagon went under it, and the mowing machine was further covered with a tarpaulin. For more than a year my shed was the only one of the kind in Benford, and that next winter I used to see machinery standing behind barns, half buried in snow and ice, going to pieces for want of care. I verily believe that the New England farmer of today is the most shiftless mortal north of the Mason and Dixon line—and he hasn't had room for an acre since.

The tragedian boasted that nature was his only teacher.

"That expression of surprise that" you assume in the second act of your latest play—is that copied from nature, too?" an admirer asked.

"It is," said the tragedian. "But I had no end of trouble in getting it."

"That is why they were careful to call you Stella."

"Do you like the name?" she whispered, creeping close to me. "Oh, John, I'm glad we're not rich like them!" with a gesture toward the pack of calling cards—"I'm glad we can work in the garden with our own hands and play games with toads and just be ourselves. Let's never be rich!"

Sudden Attack Brought Threat of Operation

Sent For a Bottle of Fruitola and Was Quickly Relieved of Gall Stone Trouble.

MR. T. L. SHERMAN

After doctoring with several different doctors and getting no relief, Mr. T. L. Sherman, 17 Crocker Ave., Johnson City, N. Y., says he was taken very suddenly one night with severe pains and on calling the doctor was told he had gall stones and that an operation was necessary. Mr. Sherman writes, "I had heard of Fruitola so sent for a bottle and took it. I was relieved of a large quantity of gall stones, and continued the treatment. Now I am quite well, and have regained over forty pounds lost weight."

Fruitola and Traxo are compounded from the original Edsall formulas at the Pinus Laboratories in Monticello, Ill., and can be purchased in Janesville at J. P. Baker, 123 W. Milwaukee St.; a doctor's prescription is not necessary. Fruitola is a pure fruit oil that acts as an intestinal lubricant and disintegrates the hardened, accumulated gall stones. One dose is usually sufficient to indicate the sufferer's intense relief. A booklet of special interest to those who suffer from stomach trouble can be obtained by writing to the Pinus Laboratories, Monticello, Illinois.

To secure that expression I asked an intimate friend to lend me $25. He refused. That caused me no surprise. I tried several other friends. They refused. Still I was not surprised. Finally I asked one who was willing to oblige me, and as he handed me the money I studied in a glass the expression of my own face. I saw surprise there, but it was not what I wanted; it was allied with the suspicion that the money might be counterfeit. I was in despair. Where should I find genuine surprise?

"Well," said his admirer, "where did you get it?"

"Then an idea struck me," the tragedian said. "I resolved upon a desperate course. I returned the $25 to my friend the next day, and on his astonished countenance I saw the expression I was in search of."

The aunt of a little boy was amazed at the appetite exhibited by him during a recent stay in her household.

"Mercy!" she exclaimed one day. "But you certainly eat a terrible lot, Willie, for such a little fellow!"

"Willie, however, was not at all upset by this."

"I expect," he rejoined, "that I ain't so little as I look from the outside."

"Miss Ann Teek has had her house furnished in colonial style."

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Madison, Wis., Nov. 2.—The campaign for a Union Religious Center at the University of Wisconsin is now being carried on energetically by many religious organizations throughout the state. The new building is to cost $250,000 and will be used to supply a place where all religious forces in the university may carry on their work. An auditorium which will seat 4,000 people will constitute the main portion of the building. The religious bodies engaged in the campaign are Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians, United Brethren, Congregationalists, Lutherans and the Y. M. C. A. The movement is open to all denominations.

OHIO STATE PLAYS BEAT FIRST TEAM IN PRACTICE GAME

Not Until Close of Scrimmage Does Varsity Solve a Defense—Editor Out.

(By Associated Press.)
Madison, Wis., Nov. 2.—Fully drilled in the Ohio State method of attack, the freshmen and the All-Americans scored three touchdowns in the varsity eleven this afternoon at Camp Randall. Dr. Whitcomb's men found considerable difficulty in solving the plays of Ohio. Near the close of the scrimmage the men seemed to have grasped the plan and held the opponents scoreless. Coach "Keg" Driver, who has been the official scout of the Ohio State team during the season, had the All-Americans well versed on the attack of Willie's men. If the varsity line and secondary defense succeed in stopping these plays they should have no trouble in winning on Saturday.

During Willie's stay at Ohio he has turned out good teams and this year is no exception to the rule. His men have the habit of running away from the opponents in the final period of play by the use of formations and forward passes. In their game against Illinois they ran away with the game in the fourth quarter by completely bewildering Macomber and his men. Last year Ohio State held Wisconsin scoreless for two quarters and then weakened, giving the Badgers a chance to win the game.

All of the regulars were out in uniform today and went through scrimmaging drill. Edler, who was injured in the Chicago game, was out and although he took little active part in the workout, ran through a few signals to get his bearings. He will be fit for the Ohio game, according to medical authorities. He will, however, only be used as much as necessary so that he will not be incapacitated for the remaining games on the schedule. Eber was playing halfback in his old place, having fully recovered from his injured leg. With him back in the harness and Edler ready to play, Dr. Whitcomb will enter the Ohio game with a full team.

Carper took his place at center during the early part of the scrimmage but could not stand the strain, so he was relieved by Kravet, who made a good showing in the Chicago game when the regular center was injured. Eitzer, veteran tackle, did not take part in the scrimmage, but was out in a uniform. Koelt and Gardner played tackles while Hancock and Deaper started at guards being replaced by Henderson and Kleckhofer late in the play.

This afternoon marked the last scrimmage of the week in preparation for the game as the squad will leave Tuesday afternoon for Columbus. The entire first squad composed of thirty men, will make the trip.

There is one of the reasons that pitchers are in such a bad way in the big show than they did in former years. Jack Coombs of the Dodgers is an example of the brainy pitcher of today. Until he met with a severe injury while a member of the Athletics Coombs combined speed, curves and headwork and was in the front class of twirlers. After being out of the game for a couple of years he drew his release from the Athletics and signed with Brooklyn. He is not now the strong pitcher he was with the Mackmen, but he is just as brainy, and it has been this asset more than anything else that has enabled him to attain what success has been his for the last two seasons with the Dodgers.

Sport Snap Shots MORRIS MILLER

There was a time in baseball that the greatest pitcher was he who had the most speed and the least assortment of curves. And while these are requisites for a good pitcher today they amount to a little in attaining success unless the pitcher has a good baseball brain. Before baseball advanced to its present standard of scientific play it was a case with the pitcher of getting every batsman either by the fast ball or the fast curve. Now the brainy pitchers conserve their strength during the early part of the games, depending upon their teammates to do their share of the work in retiring opposing batters.

In the minors it still is too often the case that a bright young prospect will burn himself out by trying to give the batter everything that they have on every ball pitched, but the minor league managers have taken their tip from higher up and unless altogether selfish will guard their youngsters against such folly. The major leagues have learned well the lesson of making their fellows share the burden of disposing of opposing batters.

The annual story that the Washington club will go farther south for training next spring is revived early. Clark Griffith has been prepping his players in the snows of Virginia hills at Charlottesville for several years now, with the idea that they should become accustomed to cold weather. The result hasn't been very successful and it is possible he may really mean to make a change in his system.

The Sunday baseball ordinance passed by the Baltimore city council last June has been knocked out by the Maryland state court of appeals, which held that Baltimore city was without authority to order the ordinance put to vote November 7. It is likely the city council will now enact another ordinance permitting Sunday baseball without any referendum.

Ban Johnson has put the matter of players acting as newspaper writers at the world's series and during the season up to the Baseball Writers' association, saying that if the writers will file a protest the two major leagues will take up the matter. It seems to be a matter that interests the regular scribes more than any other and it remains to be seen what action they will take.

The Disciples of Christ, a religious denomination which holds its annual conventions the first week in October of each year, considered a proposal at its convention in Des Moines this fall to hereafter hold its meetings in November. Because of the interest in the world's series, argued the dominion, the church convention does not receive what it considers adequate publicity from the newspapers.

Having abolished the emery ball with excellent results, some of the magnates believe that other reforms are necessary. They insist that there should be legislation against the use of the spitball and the licorice ball. Many pitchers put resin on the ball this year, while others were accused of secreting foreign substances in their hip pockets. If the rulemakers investigate thoroughly it is believed that they will legislate against every form of sharp practice in the box so that pitchers will have to depend on their natural skill. Opposition to the spitball is based on the fact that the constant use of saliva is unhealthy and interferes with clean fielding.

Jack Daubert is to desert Brooklyn and the cigar business there for the winter, according to report. He is going back to Pennsylvania and lead the simple life.

(By Associated Press.)
Ashland, Wis., Nov. 2.—Chief of Police W. T. Blair has received a black hand letter requesting him to place $500 under the commercial dock. It is said that the boy bandit has no care anything about his life. He has not heeded the missive's warning. In a boyish scrawl and signed "Ralph Barstow," a name that the police connect with a romantic story. The letter received by the chief is as follows: "If you want your life, but $500 under the commercial dock."

Phenomenal Suit Purchase and Sale

T. P. Burns Company Purchases 100 Suits and Adds 100 Suits to Big Ten-Day November Sale

This unusual Suit Sale consists of one hundred Suits that we purchased at a big saving from a manufacturer and one hundred suits which we took from our stock and reduced in price especially for this big sale.

We have divided the suits into two big lots of one hundred suits each at $17.25 and $23.25. The styles of these suits are characterized by large collars and wide cuffs, shirrings, pleats and belts. Many of the more dressy models are embellished with trimmings of fur and velour. The colors cover a wide range and are strikingly attractive—Russian Green, Seal Brown, Navy Blue, Taupe, Plum, Rubber Gray and Wine colored Burgundies. The materials are Whipcords, Gaberdines, Serges, Wool Velours, Broadcloths. All sizes are in this lot and many of the linings are guaranteed for two seasons.
